

The Jim and Sandra Stafford Scholarship in Energy Management

Oklahoma-NARO is a proud supporter of the future leaders in the oil and gas industry. Thus, we are interested in encouraging the best and brightest to consider a business career focused on the uniquely U.S. opportunity to become decision makers inside the oil and gas industry with career goals centered around development and production of our country's natural resources.

The University of Tulsa Energy Management program provides a broad-based curriculum for those who will be dealing with mineral and royalty interest owners on a variety of corporate levels. The Energy management program is also an excellent course of study for future managers of family-held mineral.

The scholarship will provide financial assistance to a qualified undergraduate student majoring in Energy Management. A representative of The National Association of Royalty Owners, Oklahoma Chapter will participate in the selection of scholarship recipients.
